

Cremation is a special way some families say goodbye after someone has died. The person's body is turned into ashes using a kind of heat. "The ashes can be placed into a special container called an urn, ashes can be buried, and can also be turned into jewellery or made into art as a keepsake.

The Children's Grief Foundation
of Canada